OVERVIEW OF THE SEMINAR

The merely traditional project manager understands the basic responsibilities of a project manager. The proactive project manager looks beyond this towards a more strategic and dynamic vision to achieve the project outcomes effectively. They view the project management processes from a proactive rather than reactive perspective. The proactive project manager is the one who has made the mental transition to apply his or her discipline and skills on a proactive and ongoing basis. Proactive project management hence breaks free from the routine project management methodology to a more dynamic and interpersonal approach.

Learning Network Solutions is proud to present this one day seminar that looks into how to be a proactive project management executive. Facilitated by two highly acclaimed and renowned experts, it will also address the applications of best practice in project management and risk mitigation in projects. It will discuss how emotional competencies impact the outcome of a project and how it leads to a strategic and positive relationship in a project management scenario. It will demonstrate how to link and direct the efforts of individual project team members with the overall success of the project, thus promoting teamwork, improving project team morale and creating positive working relationships in a project team.

It is developed for managers and officers responsible for or involved with project management. The seminar is interactive and delegates will be asked to get involved in various syndicate exercises during the course of the seminar. Places are limited and will be offered on a first come first serve basis.
